Leading with Cancer Rehabilitation to Improve Survivorship Care

by:

Nicole Stout, DPT, CLT-LANA, FAPTA
CEO, 3e Services
Consultant, Office of Strategic Research, Dept of Rehabilitation Medicine, National Institutes of Health

Friday, November 16, 2018
1:00 – 2:00 PM
Mayo Building Room 3-125

For directions to Mayo:
http://campusmaps.umn.edu/mayo-building-additions

Dr. Stout is a health care researcher, consultant, educator, and advocate. She is CEO of 3e Services, an information technology consulting firm where she serves as a medical affairs consultant for biotech and health care wearable firms. Additionally, she supports the Office of Strategic Research at the National Institutes of Health, Rehabilitation Medicine Department leading the Cancer Rehabilitation Initiative. She has given over 200 lectures nationally and internationally, authored and co-authored over 50 peer-review and invited publications, several book chapters, and is the co-author of the book 100 Questions and Answers about Lymphedema. Her research publications have been foundational in developing the Prospective Surveillance Model for breast cancer rehabilitation and supporting national initiatives in cancer rehabilitation. Dr. Stout is the recipient of numerous research and publication awards. She has received service awards from the National Institutes of Health Clinical Center, the Navy Surgeon General, and the Oncology Section of the American Physical Therapy Association and was recently selected as a Fellow of the American Physical Therapy Association.